

MAKES GREAT SPEECH IN CONGRESS WITHOUT SAYING A WORD

Congressman Akin and His Speech.

When Representative Theron Akin of New York arose in congress t'other day and asked for five minutes to make a speech, nobody expected much. But he put over a brilliant oration, pregnant with a heap of meaning, by simply calling a page and sending him to the speaker's rostrum with the placard shown above. When everybody had taken a good look Akin st down.

"Which is worse, counterfeit money or counterfeit food?" asks Miss Esther Allstrum, food inspector of Tacoma. How about a woman food inspector for our town?

*Should preachers live
on vegetables?
Read Dr. Wiley*